3Moore Trip to the Ure Museum

English

This week, we have started a beautiful new book entitled “The Bluest of Blues” by Fiona Robinson. We began by discussing and exploring the illustrations inside the book, before starting to read it. We then identified clues in the text about the main character’s life and personality. Next week we will be planning and writing a non-chronological report,

Maths

This week, our marvellous mathematicians have collected their own data about popular pets and used their data to construct pictograms and bar charts. They have also begun to interpret information in simple two-way tables.

Next week the children will begin a series of lessons about mass and capacity. Currently, our TT Rock Stars focus is the 9 times table.

PSHRE

This week we talked about how lots of changes happen in humans and animals between birth and growing up. We discussed why parents need to devote a lot of care to a baby and how it feels to have a new baby in the family.
