Our Learning

This week, we recapped our previous knowledge on tectonic plates, terrain and climate zones and applied it to our knowledge of our own island!

In maths, we continued with negative numbers, but with a focus on comparing and ordering negative numbers and finding the difference.

In English, we continued writing effective sentences for our balanced argument, in preparation for writing our own balanced argument.

Next week, we will be exploring our local area and making geographical comparisons between Slough, Cadgwith, Glen Coe and Bakewell.

In maths, we will continue our new unit which we started at the end of this week, Converting units. We will further explore imperial and metric units.

In English, we will begin to write our own balanced argument, on one of the following questions:

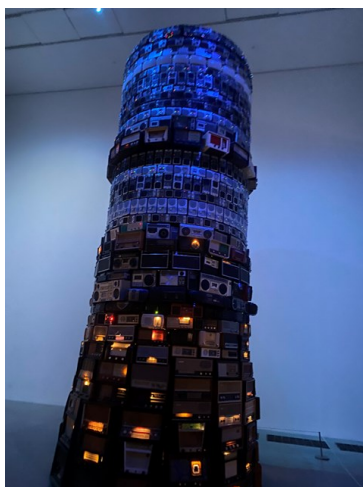

Are we too dependant on computers?

Would life be better without technology?

Can robots replace teachers?

We will keep our arguments balanced by using research

We visited the Tate Modern on Monday and we had a great time!

PSHRE Focus: In PSHRE this term, we are on our last JIGSAW unit 'Changing Me' where we will learn about self-image, puberty and coping positively with change. Towards the end of the unit, we will start preparing ourselves for the year ahead by focussing on building healthy relationships and learning the skills required to develop resilience, assertiveness and self-respect.
